Goal 2: Increase the Educational Pipeline

Wisconsin's Annual Minority Recruiting Pipeline

Application and Access Rates at UW-Madison for Wisconsin Minority High School Graduates

Key Points

- Despite increases in the number of minority high school graduates since the start of Plan 2008, there has not been as much increase in the size of UW-Madison's recruiting pool – those graduates in the top half of their class with ACT scores over 22 (the statewide average).

- There are about 700 minority students per year in UW-Madison's recruiting pool.

- Despite the static size of UW-Madison's recruiting pool, the proportion of minority graduates who apply to UW-Madison has increased. All four minority groups show increases in application rates since the start of Plan 2008.

- The proportion of high school graduates who enroll the following fall – called the access rate – has increased for all four minority groups and has more than doubled for African Americans.
